DETAILED ACTION

The indicated allowability of claim 2 is withdrawn for the reason stated in the following rejection.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The text of those sections of Title 35, U.S. Code not included in this action can be found in a prior Office action.

Claims 1-2 and 24 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Brandt.

Brandt discloses an optical scanner which comprises a light source (12); a deflector (polygon mirror 20) having facets (21); and an optical surface (protective optical coating layer) applied on each of the facets of the deflector for providing relative uniformity of reflectance of P-polarized and S-polarized incident light (see Figs. 1, 4 and 5-6 and abstract). Brandt further discloses, in Figs. 5 and 6, that when the film thickness is 180 nm, the reflectance of S-polarized light (about 0.90) and the reflectance of P-polarized light (about 0.894) are substantially the same at an incident angle of 15 degrees. Brandt does not disclose a plurality of light beams emitted from the light source. However, the use of a light source for emitting a plurality of light beams in a scanning device for scanning a plurality of light beam simultaneously so as to reduce scanning operation time is well known in the art. Thus, it would have been obvious to one skilled in the art at the time the invention was made to replace the light source (12) in Brandt with a multiple beam light source for emitting a plurality of light beams so that the plurality of the light beams can be simultaneously scanned for reducing the scanning operation time.

In re claim 2 the difference between the reflectance of S-polarized light and the reflectance of P-polarized light is $\{(0.90-0.894) / ((0.90+0.894)/2)\} \times 100 = 0.669\%$.

Applicant has traversed the above rejection by arguing that Brandt does not use S-polarized light and P-polarized light together. The examiner agrees; however, neither claim 1 nor 24 positively recites that the S-polarized light and P-polarized light are components of the "plurality of light beams" recited in the claims.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 13-15 and 23 are allowed.

Claims 3 and 4 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: the prior art fails to teach or suggest an optical scanner having (1) the feature specified in each of claims 3 and 4; and (2) the combination features of "a light source for emitting a plurality of light beams in which a polarization direction of at least one of the light beams is different from polarization directions of the other light beams" and "the optical surface having a reflectance for s-polarized light and a reflectance for p-polarized light that are substantially the same at a predetermined incident angle to the optical surface" (claim 13, lines 2-4 and 8-10).
